Justin's practice focuses on complex civil litigation, with strong experience representing plaintiffs and defendants in state and federal courts around the country in contract disputes, oil and gas litigation, and antitrust disputes.

He has taken and defended numerous depositions, presented and cross-examined witnesses at trial, delivered opening statements at trial, argued several dispositive motions, and managed complex document review projects. In 2024, Justin went to trial three times in state and federal courts, including first-chairing a breach of contract dispute.

Justin maintains an active pro bono practice, with experience assisting clients with eviction and guardianship issues through the Houston Volunteer Lawyers. He also has previously served as part of the defense team for a client charged with first-degree murder.

Justin is recognized as "One to Watch" in commercial litigation by Best Lawyers in America. He clerked with the Hon. J. Frederick Motz in the U.S. District Court for the District of Maryland.

Prior to joining the firm, Justin practiced with AZA in Houston and Williams & Connolly LLP in Washington, D.C.
